COLONIAL SECRETARY RECEIVES K.B.E. IN BIRTHDAY HONOURS

HK.'S FORCES ON PARADE

CEREMONY AT STATUE SQUARE

H.E. General Borrett
Takes Salute.

IMPRESSIVE MARCH PAST
BY TROOPS

The annual parade and review of troops on the occasion of the 68th birthday of His Majesty the King, took place at the Cenotaph this morning. In spite of the threatening weather, large crowds watched the colourful ceremony, many Chinese being among the spectators. Owing to the indisposition of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.B.E., K.C.M.G., His Excellency the G.O.C. Major-General O.C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., reviewed the troops and took the salute. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, China Station, Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Dreyer, was not present, being with the fleet in the north.

His Excellency the G.O.C., escorted by the Motor Cycle section of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps arrived at Statue Square a few minutes before 10 o'clock, and was met by the senior officers of the Royal Navy, Army and Air Force. A salute was given by the Guard of Honour on His Excellency's arrival. After inspecting the Guard, which was composed of two officers and 50 men of the Royal Navy and two officers and 50 men of the 1st Batt. South Wales Borderers, His Excellency took up his position for the March Past.

Scarcely had he crossed the Cenotaph steps than the Royal Salute of 21 guns boomed out from Murray Parade Ground, interspersed after each seven rounds, by the sharper crackle of the feu-de-joie, fired by the 1st Battalion Lincolnshire Regiment.

After the Royal Salute, the National Anthem was played by the band of the South Wales Borderers and was followed by three rousing cheers for His Majesty.

The March Past.

The March Past then commenced, the long columns moving off headed by detachments of the Royal Navy, to the strains of a march played by the bands of the Lincolnshire Regiment and South Wales Borderers.

The moving columns presented an inspiring sight, the familiar khaki of the two main units throwing into sharp contrast the spotless whites of the naval men. The brilliant turbans of the Indian units and the blue-grey of the Royal Air Force added their quota

SEAMAN WATSON'S COMEBACK

Beats Canadian Title
Holder On Points.

WEEK AFTER BIG FIGHT.

Toronto, May 26.

Seaman Watson, British featherweight champion who dropped a decision to Kid Chocolate last week, to-day proved he was still fighting fit when he easily won a decision from Bobby Lawrence, Canadian champion, in a 10-round struggle.

Watson appeared little the worse for wear when he proved vastly superior to the Canadian exponent to outdistance him in the race for points.

Both weighed in at 129 pounds. Last winter Watson eliminated Fidel La Barba, featherweight, who was substituted for Chocolate in a previous scheduled meeting.

Watson hopes to get a return match with Chocolate in Europe, where the Cuban is planning a campaign. — United Press.

STOCKS SOAR IN WALL STREET

New York, To-day.

Industrial and utility stocks soared on the New York market yesterday, the former averaging an advance of 3.11 and the latter an advance of 2.48. Trade and foreign selling forced an initial decline in silver but subsequent Commission House and speculative buying was responsible for an advancing tendency.

General business was brisk, 6,888,000 shares changing hands. — Reuter.

GERMANY TO DECLARE A MORATORIUM

£1,000,000,000 INVOLVED IN HER
FOREIGN DEBTS

INTERNATIONAL BANKERS AGREE THAT
GERMANY'S TRADE MUST BE RESTORED

BERLIN, TO-DAY.

A MORATORIUM FOR ALL GERMANY'S FOREIGN DEBTS WILL BE ANNOUNCED SHORTLY AFTER WHITSUN: STATED DOCTOR SCHACHT, PRESIDENT OF THE REICHSBANK, YESTERDAY.

The importance of Dr. Schacht's statement regarding the moratorium for Germany's foreign debts, is shown by the fact that the total debt involved is estimated at some 20,000,000,000 marks, equivalent to £1,000,000,000, on which service charges totalling about £65,000,000 fall due during the current year.

The United States is Germany's biggest creditor with a total of 8,016,000,000 marks Holland comes next with 3,427,000,000 marks, and Britain third with 2,231,000,000 marks.

The present difficulties are due to the tremendous shrinkage of Germany's foreign trade.

The Reichsbank's note covers only 8.3 per cent of the debt, compared with the normal legal minimum of 40 per cent.

Later.

While Dr. Schacht did not actually state that there would be a moratorium, this is the general interpretation of his statement. — Reuter.

France Not Worried.

"PRIVATE DEBTS ONLY AFFECTED"

Paris, To-day.

Official circles here are not greatly moved by Dr. Schacht's statement.

It is the general opinion that it merely referred to debts of the German Government to private individuals. It is not believed that it will affect the Young Plan bonds. — Reuter.

Foreign Trade
Decline.

EXTENSION OF RESERVES
DEEMED NECESSARY.

Berlin, Later.

A statement has been unanimously adopted by a Conference of British, American and other foreign bankers, on the service of Germany's foreign debt.

NOT A GENERAL MORATORIUM

Germany Will Try To Meet Payments.

AMERICAN THREAT

Berlin, later.

Some form of a moratorium, to be declared next week is regarded as certain but not a general moratorium.

Some are of the opinion that Dr. Schacht will declare a moratorium on amortisation payments, but will try to pay a portion of the interest in foreign currencies and the balance in marks, which must be invested or spent in Germany.

Payments on the Dawes and Young Plan Loans are at present unaffected.

American delegates made it clear that in the event of Dr. Schacht declaring a general moratorium, American bondholders were prepared to seize any property in America belonging to German firms whose bonds were in default. — Reuter.

The Conference agrees on the desirability of gradually increasing the Reichsbank's reserves of gold and foreign currency, and recognises that the declining surplus of Germany's foreign trade and services necessitates consideration and protection and also extension of Germany's reserves for foreign exchange.

JAPAN SEEKS RECOGNITION OF MANCHUKUO

London Interpretation
Of Armistice.

CHINESE RESISTANCE SEEN
AS A GESTURE

London, To-day.

Opening with an expression of opinion that the Japanese have adopted a wise policy in signing an armistice, "Week End Review" states that the watchword is peace and goodwill until further notice.

If the formula works an attempt to coax some sort of recognition for Manchukuo out of at least some of the Powers, may soon be expected.

British opinion should be on guard against this transparent strategy, the journal continues, at the same time, following the Lytton Report, it will appreciate the importance of finding some better basis for the Japanese economy and population, as a condition for settled peace in the Far East.

The "Spectator" considers that Nanking's recent futile armed resistance has been no more than a gesture for the benefit of Chinese public opinion. — Reuter.

FOUR POWER PACT JEOPARDIZED

French Demands On Germany's Arms.

NOT ACCEPTABLE TO MUSSOLINI

Rome, To-day.

A critical stage has been reached in the negotiations in connection with the Four Power Pact. While no official confirmation is obtainable, it is believed that Signor Mussolini has informed France that her demands regarding the rigid control of future German armament construction, is not acceptable. The French reply is anxiously awaited.

It is understood that Signor Mussolini intended to make an important statement with reference to the Pact in the Senate to-day, but it is now announced that the Senate will not sit to-day.

This suggests that M. Ducloux does not expect to be in a position to make a statement before Monday. — Reuter.

JAPANESE TRADE COMPETITION

Serious Effect On British Markets.

GOVERNMENT STATEMENT ON FISCAL POLICY

London, To-day.

In the later stages of yesterday's debate on the adjournment of the House of Commons, the question of Japanese competition was raised.

Colonel Colville, Parliamentary Secretary for Overseas Trade, replying for the Government, said that the low cost of labour in Japan entered very largely into their competitive power, but allowance should be made for Japan's organisation and efficient production.

GREY AND BEIGE SPORTS WEAR

More Vivid Colours Than Street Costumes.

During the early part of the season the colours favoured by the day-time mode will form the basis of the colour trend in sportswear with the two neutral colours, grey and beige, assuming an important colour.

In sports clothes, more vivid contrasts can be worked out than in street costumes, so one may expect to see a more generous use of bright colour in combination with the neutrals.

Navy also stands in high favour for sports costumes. As the season advances and the demand comes for lighter colours, carrying shades of blue, particularly those with a hyacinth or violet cast, are slated for acceptance.

In the green shades yellow green is the newest and there is a new melon shade, a colour hovering between peach and tangerine that is very soft and becoming and very good when combined with beige or brown.

SQUARED EFFECT FOR SHOULDERS.

Bow Neck Effective.

One of the most popular suit types is the dress and jacket combination. However, this summer a wide choice is offered.

Oxford gray rabbit's wool is used. The coat is slightly fitted. The one-button closing and long revers are smart style details.

The bow neck is effective with the open front of the free swinging jacket and a small dotted silk print makes the top of the one-piece dress.

Suit jackets may be any length, from the very brief basque-like holers right down the line to finger tip lengths, three-quarter and seven-eighths.

There is much talk about the square-shouldered aspect which gives a squared effect to the body above the waistline.

Lawlin also leans in this direction with built-up epaulettes for day wear. Other shoulders are extended and raised by stiffening.

USEFUL TAILORED TWO-PIECE.

More About Sleeves
And Colours.

TRIM "SLICK LINES."

The woman who is looking for a smart ensemble which will be useful for many occasions will find the newest two-piece a serviceable investment. It consists of a simple frock and a seven-eighths length coat, both made of the same material. Two models were shown to illustrate it at an exclusive dress parade—one by a girl of about twenty-six and the other by a woman of forty.

The difference between the models was practically negligible. The older woman wore Admiral blue, and her skirt was three inches nearer her ankles than was the one worn by the girl, who by the way, had chosen tree-brown for her two-piece.

Tailored Effect.

The frock was so simple that it had a tailored effect—the skirt plain with just a suggestion of a flare towards the hem, and the bodice made with a V-neck and a becoming cross-over line. The coat was the "dressy" half of the partnership. It had a rounded shoulder yoke covering perhaps five inches of the upper arm and then sloping gracefully upwards to the throat in front.

The material, which was marocain, was only slightly eased into this yoke so that the "skirt" fell softly but by no means fussily over the dress below. A scarf-collared, tied like a muffler, and with wide, shaped ends, flowed cascade fashion down the front. The sleeves were a variation of this year's leg o'mutton design, fitting tightly from elbow to wrist. The Red slippers were worn with this frock, the skirt of which cleared the ground all round.

Marocain and satin dance dresses invariably boast puff sleeves—sometimes modelled on those of a baby's frock, sometimes decorated in elaborate fashion. Chiffon and organdi dresses have little cape-like shoulder pieces which just cover the tops of the arms, and there are some wired draperies which stand out from the arms and are fluted to give the impression of frills.

Curiously enough, these wide sleeve draperies are most often seen on a dress cut on what the designers describe as "slick lines." The "slick" frock is so straight as to skirt and so elegantly fitted about the bodice that it gives at first glance an impression of trimness which is most attractive after a succession of fluffy effects.

STRIPES AND CHECKS.

Stripes and checks worn together is a new fashion for holiday girls this summer.

style impressed as one which would look attractive in any of the new light-weight materials, with their surface patterns.

Smart Sleeves.

The dressmakers are growing very brave about sleeves. At first they adopted the square shoulders cautiously and modified the leg o' mutton fullness as much as they dared. Now they have taken their courage in both hands, and a frock or blouse depends largely upon its sleeves for its chic. Especially is this the case with evening dresses, which are rarely seen without some adornment at the shoulders or some covering for the upper arms.

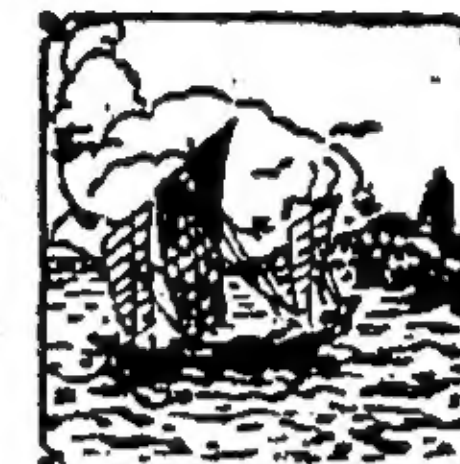

Touch of Cherry.

A black frock of crinkled crepe had tiny puff sleeves slashed to reveal a touch of cherry red, this colour being repeated on the corsage where a slender strip of cherry crepe outlined a vestette.

CINEMA NOTES*MAIL REVIEW*"MEN OF CHANCE"—CENTRAL THEATRE.

With a cast featured by favourite stage and screen stars, such as Mary Astor and John Holliday, supplemented by the activities of that cinematic villain, Richardo Cortez, the RKO Radio film, "Men Of Chance," is now showing at the Central Theatre.

The Paris underworld, rival race track gambling cliques, vengeance upon vengeance subsequent to double-crossing, establish high lights in a production that is thronged with interest from beginning to finish.
Shots from Longchamps, Deauville, Daytona Beach, Agua Caliente, Montmartre cafes and unique Continental backgrounds lend distinctive settings for the stars.

MAIL REVIEW*"MAN ABOUT TOWN"—KING'S THEATRE

Mystery, romance, intrigue and jealousy are reported as the elements in "Man About Town," the Fox picture at the King's Theatre.

It brings Warner Baxter to the screen in the role of a man who is ready to die to save the woman he took away from his best friend.

"Man About Town" is a story of conflicting emotions, played against a background of Washington society and all the glamor of life in the national capital.

Karen Morley, who will be pleasantly remembered for her performance in "Arsene Lupin," the Barrymore brothers' picture, portrays the leading feminine role in "Man About Town." The supporting cast includes Conway Tearle, Alan Mowbray, Leni Stengel, Lillian Bond, Lawrence Grant and Halliwell Bobbes.

MAIL REVIEW*"MADISON SQUARE GARDEN," QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"Madison Square Garden," showing at the Queen's Theatre, deals with a group of people of varied temperaments, who glide briefly into the action, and then out of it, their lives changed by the events in which they have participated.

It is the story of a manager with two proteges, and two girl telegraph operators with whom they are in love. These four stumble into the story, and it is they who serve to hold the various incidents and characters together.

The cast of the film is headed by Jack Oakie, Marian Nixon, Warren Hymer, William Collier, Sr., William Boyd and Zazu Pitta.

MAIL REVIEW*"SUICIDE FLEET"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

Bill Boyd, and those two inimitable comedians, Robert Armstrong and James Gleason, are featured in a thrilling, epic of the high seas, "Suicide Fleet," now showing at the Oriental Theatre.

Thrills are plentiful throughout, while the laughter side of the film is catered for by Robert Armstrong and James Gleason. Boyd's two "Buddies," Ginger Rogers provides the love interest in the film.

BRIDGE NOTES*THE WORLD OF BRIDGE.

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Joseph B. Elwell, who wrote all, but if you must, criticize fairly."

An Unusual Slam Bid.
"Rare is the occasion," writes Mr. John W. Jacobson of Toronto, "when it is possible to arrive at a perfectly sound Grand Slam contract in the face of an adverse Opening bid. Such an opportunity presented itself during a point game between Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Slyne of Toronto, and the excellent deduction of the South player in placing all the adverse honor strength with East was responsible for the ultimate contract of seven diamonds, which, of course, was made without difficulty."

It has been truthfully said that there is no game in which slight intimations can convey so much information as that of Bridge. In justice to those who, by their manner, give information, it may be stated that most of the apparent unfairness at the Bridge table is unintentional. Hesitation and mannerisms, however, cannot be too carefully avoided; such a breach of etiquette is an offence for which the adversaries have no redress except perhaps a refusal to continue the play.

"It is obviously a greater fault to take advantage of information thus given. A play in your judgment may be perfectly sound, but you leave yourself open to criticism if it is in any way contingent on information obtained from your partner's manner."

"Cultivate uniformity in your style of play; let there be no remarkable haste or hesitation in making or passing; try always to use the same formula of words, and do not call attention to the score after the cards are dealt."

"Remember that any undue hesitancy in regard to doubling will deprive a fair-minded partner of the privilege of so doing."

"Emphasize no play of your own, and show no pleasure or displeasure at any other play."

"Do not ask to have the cards placed unless it is solely for your own information."

"It is an offense either to revoke purposely or to make a second revoke in order to conceal the first."

"The Dealer's partner should not call attention to the score nor to any card or cards that he or the other players hold, and neither should he leave his seat for the purpose of watching his partner's play."

"When there is an unusual distribution of the cards, no remarks of any kind should be allowed."

"After a hand has been played, it may be discussed to the common benefit; but the bore who is continually blowing up his partner to show his superior knowledge, together with the player who interrupts the game to discuss the play, should be ostracised from the card-room. Superiority of skill is shown by the play of the cards, not by mannerisms."

"It is often difficult to refrain from showing pleasure at the accomplishment of a desired purpose, but undue elation is most aggravating to the adversaries."

"Do not make a dig at the adversaries by confiding to your partner that your success was due to an ill-judged play of the opponent."

"It is not good form to complain of poor cards, as you imply that the adversaries profit by your weak hands, and not by their skill."

"The better players rarely criticize unless asked to do so; it is usually the inexperienced player who offers an astonishing amount of gratuitous and un-sought-for advice."

"Do not tell your partner, after seeing all the cards, what he should have done, but think what you would have done in your partner's place. Do not criticize at times."

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Difficult.
A man complained in a London Court that a girl employed by him as a domestic servant had broken his heart.—And she simply could not have been dusting that.

The Unattractive Service.
Policewomen who use lipstick or allow a tiny "kiss" curl to peep from beneath their helmets, are strongly disapproved of by Commandant Mary Allen, chief of the Women's Auxiliary Service. Policewomen, to be really efficient, should look as forbidding as possible.

Something Wrong.
Writes the New York Herald-Tribune:—

A moment later he was the soul of paternal tenderness as he passed out a suggestion to the 100 ballet girls, the forty-eight box-ettes, and the 100 choristers.

"I want all you kids to keep grinning, no matter what happens." The kids grinned, showing 350 rows of teeth.

It was all very regimental. But either the paper's arithmetic or knowledge of natural history is wrong.

They Got Married.
Inexplicable feelings of enraptured love didn't see fit to eschew the matrimonial vow any longer, hence Arvel F. McDannell, twenty-three-year-old young farmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDannell, residing just east of Creal Springs and Miss Ruby Turnage, nineteen-year-old charming and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Turnage, of Creal Springs, hied over to Marion, Saturday, December 3, and were united into connubity by Justice of Peace, H.P. Frick.—Vienna (Ill.) "Times."

Love's Labour.
"Sunny Jim, last name unknown, weary with fruitless searching grown, decided to try in a novel way to regain his love of a by-gone day. With a sense of humour and a bent for rhymes, Sunny Jim put an ad in the New York "Times":—

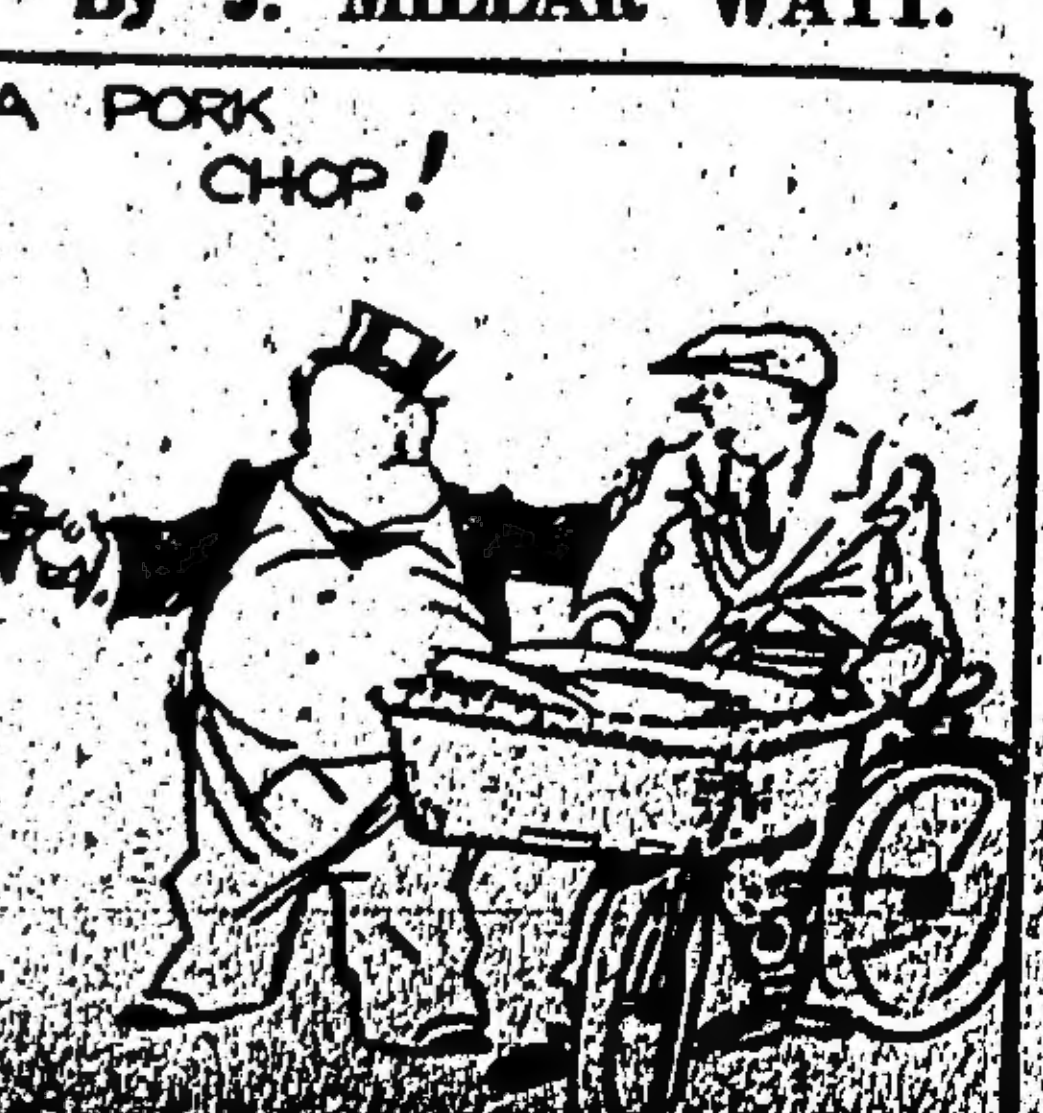

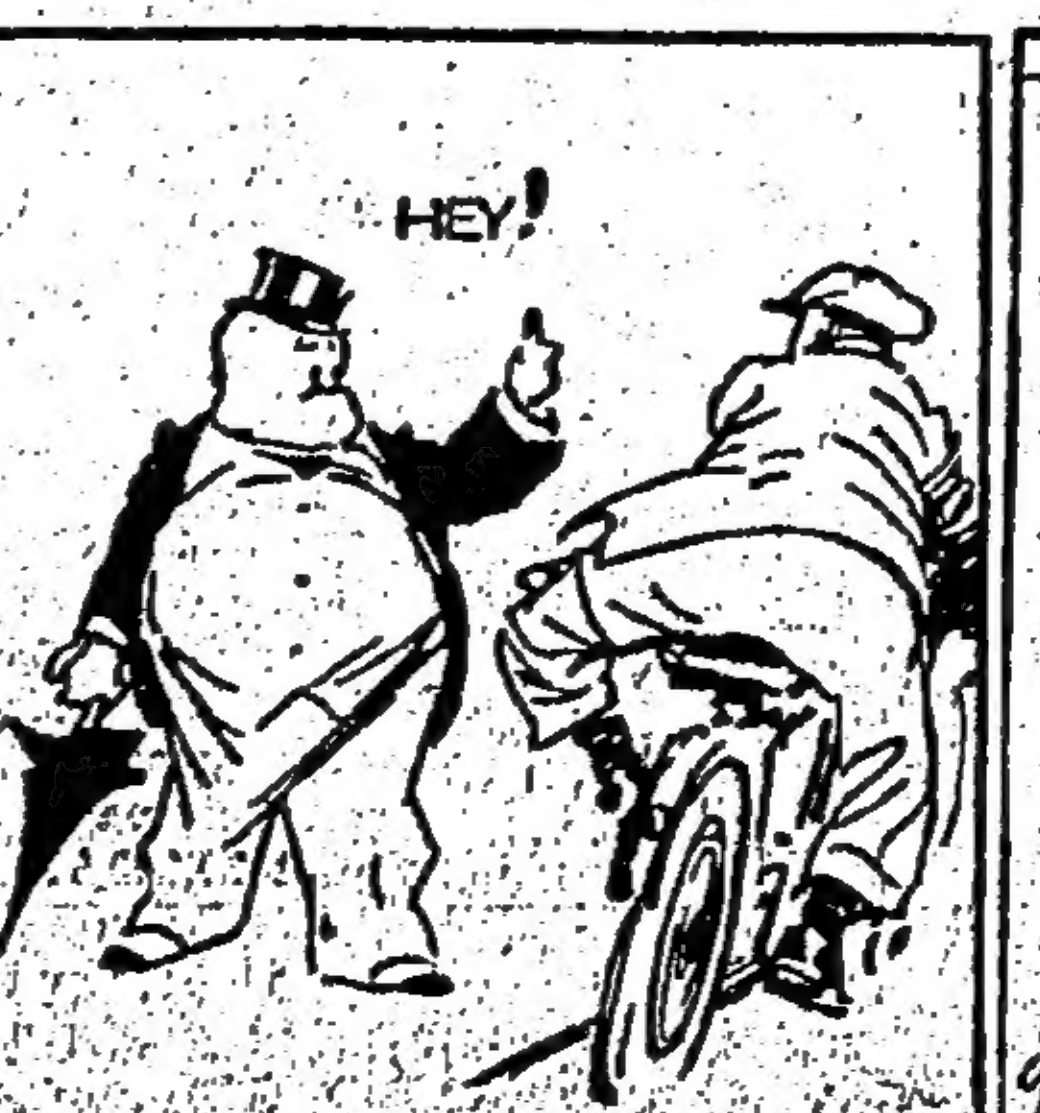

"I Pen These Lines to Minny Hanff.
For whom I've searched from Maine to Banff.
But all my letters have miscarried. Perhaps, Miss Hanff, you've since been married.
If from the Dumps you'd rescue him, Please drop a line to Sunny Jim.
The effect on Minny must remain concealed, for replies, if any, are not revealed."

Prohibition Blues.
Prohibition is having what a friend in New York describes optimistically as "its last fling," writes The Londoner in the "Evening Standard." With the prospect of the repeal of the 18th Amendment, Prohibition Blues is, he states, becoming popular among the victims of wood alcohol and other poisons retailed under the Volstead Act.

It is entitled, "Ah, This is Love," and begins as follows:
"There's the wonderful love of a beautiful maid,
And the love of a staunch, true man;
And the love of a babe that's un-cared—
These exist since Time began.
But the most wonderful love, the love of love,
Even grater than that of a Mother,
Is the tender, infinite, passionate love
Of one dead drunk for another."

"I Would Rebuild London Thus"

Artist's Solution Of Slum Problem

BEAUTY BEFORE HIDEOUSNESS

(By C. R. W. Nevinston.)

If I were a dictator, and could replan London, I would start destroying as little, and constructing as much, as possible for the rising generation.

I would start in the centre, and work on the plan that London must cease from sprawling; therefore, at Charing Cross I would make one large terminus, with an enormous bridge, starting from Trafalgar square, much on the same principle as the Grand Central Terminal in New York City. It would be a bridge that would end approximately at the Elephant and Castle; it would be a bridge that would carry all forms of transport.

To begin with, I would devote myself to South London, because it already has so many wide roads. Besides another Embankment, I would make a new Mayfair in Lambeth, and link the "City" with rapid river transport. I would do all in my power to break down the snobbery which exists between the north bank and the south bank of the Thames.

I would make the heart of London healthy, instead of a congested and cluttered area, incapable of fulfilling its function and supplying its extremities with proper circulation. I would remember that though London is every year becoming cleaner and less smoky, owing to gas cookers and electric power, it is, nevertheless, a city of mist, and that light will always be, for climatic reasons, its most precious and rare possession. This is the most essential and particular problem for London, which makes most modern town-planning from Russia, Germany and America impractical.

Unsuitable Architecture. Up to the present, English architecture has been mostly unsuitable for Britain, because it has refused to face our unique climate. Too much of the architecture of the past has been based upon the traditions of sun-soaked Italy and France; one of the fundamental reasons for fine architecture has always been as a protection against the local climatic peculiarities. Also, London will never be able to run up to the skies in the Manhattan manner.

For the future, every tradition of "Ye Olde" every survival of the picturesque, and every convention of the Renaissance and the Neo-Classical must be forgotten. Architects must be constantly reminded that there is no longer a tax upon windows; that glass no longer needs casements, leads, or wooden slats; and that for money-saving alone, buildings of the future should consist almost entirely of glass, steel and an unporous material, in order to fight damp and grimy corrosion.

Space is as valuable in London as it is in Downtown, if not more valuable, yet the English, with that strange extravagance peculiar to their race, continue to throw away millions by building roofs which are slanting and useless.

I would plan houses, particularly dwelling houses, with receding terraces and flat-roofs that could be used as playgrounds for children instead of the streets, lungs for adults, and, for women, drying grounds for their "washing." The importance of flat roofs and terraces cannot be overestimated, if we are going to get the next generation to live in taller blocks of dwellings.

Cockney Desires. Having in my time lived with and amongst the very poor, I am convinced that the methods and ideals of Vienna or Berlin rebuilding schemes ignore the wants and characteristics of the English poor.

The Cockney is one of the most kind-hearted and convivial of neighbours in times of distress or sickness, but, nevertheless, he is not communally-minded. He likes living in a tiny two-storeyed house, even if each room is revoltingly overcrowded. He wants his yard to chop wood in, a tiny bit of ground for his rabbits and his dogs and where his wife can hang out her washing.

My terraced dwellings would be ideal for supplying these Cockney wants. They would also have a large number of bed-kitchen-rooms, fitted like a yacht with bunks, sinks, dressers and gas stoves as part of the furniture, for those families who can afford only very little rent or for people who live alone, and I would remember that an electric fan to draw out the smell of cooking or washing is infinitely cheaper than an extra room.

From an aesthetic point of view, under my dictatorship, London would become as beautiful as a North African flat-roofed city, and an ever-increasing number of people would desire to live in the money.

FRESH LIGHT ON COMPLEXIONS

Controlled By Gland In Head.

U. S. SCIENTISTS' DISCOVERY

New York. Discovery that complexion is controlled by a gland in the head is claimed by two scientists at the American Museum of Natural History.

The gland is the pituitary, a small organ near the base of the brain. Its complexion control is a minute secretion of chemicals which activate the setting of at least two skin pigments, red and black.

Discovery of the red "activator" follows closely on the heels of identification of a black pigment control announced recently by two German scientists.

The red control is different from the chemical which activates black pigment. Both are hormones. The new one was found while the two Americans were experimenting to learn why a red salamander turns red. The red coats appear when this species metamorphoses from larvae into adults.

When the pituitary glands were removed from baby salamanders they grew up a pale yellow, never turning their natural red. But a frog's pituitary gland extract could turn them red.

The fact that the pituitary of a cow or a frog is just as good a sex control, for a salamander as his own product seems to indicate that the hormones of this gland probably are universal among backboned animals. Man so far as known produces exactly the same kind of hormones in his pituitary as the lower animals. Animal pituitary hormones have been used to control growth of children and for other human medical treatment. — Reuter.

Heart of the City and its healthy surroundings.

Terraces, as has been discovered in Sydney, are a protection from street noises, and to help this important reformation I would have traffic lights at every turning, timed to change colour according to the volume of traffic on the most-used roads.

It is the usual thing for town planners immediately to wish to widen streets. Certainly this should be done, but, as Fifth Avenue proves, it is not the only solution for traffic congestion. All modern shops, hotels and blocks of buildings I would supply with a basement for the entrance and exit of cars, for parking and unloading.

As most of our public transport on the streets is double-decked, I would encourage all modern shops to have two tiers of display windows. If business men had ever observed the amount of time spent by women when travelling on tram-cars and buses in shop-gazing, they would realise that this second floor is almost as valuable as the street level. And, in times of fog, urged to make a special effort to the double-deck shop windows would be of practical value for diffused illumination.

I am convinced that the adoption of these suggestions would save the lives of children; that my modern houses would do much to prevent rickets and tuberculosis, and therefore would save many thousands of pounds of both private and public money. The pace of traffic in the city would increase by at least fifteen miles an hour, and save petrol consumption. The return of the population to the centre of the city would do much to prevent the countryside, becoming despoiled, and out of the reach of the majority of town dwellers in their hours of relaxation.

The Asset Of Beauty. Planning for the next generation, I would place beauty and health before wastage and hideousness. Utility is seldom hideous; beauty is an asset and not a luxury; ugliness and disease are a costly liability.

The English are always accused by the rest of the world of hating beauty, owing to their puritanical traditions. It is said that they suspect sin and uselessness as the urge of all aesthetics, so that business men, borough councillors, and other champions of purity can always find good reasons for the destruction of beauty and can always explain why the Waterloo-road should be preserved at any cost. If I replanned London I would work on exactly opposite principles, and save lives, health and money.

His Majesty.

His Majesty, King George V, will be 68 years of age to-day and in every part of our widely-scattered Empire Britishers will observe the occasion. This is the one day in the year on which public demonstrations of loyalty to the Crown are planned, and manifestations of allegiance are made by public celebrations, massed parades and similar colourful ceremonies. At this time when Imperial and world problems are acute, and when the Empire is facing the most critical economic crisis it has known, such manifestations possess more than the usual significance. Since the King's last birthday the ties of Empire have been cemented and, as a result of the Ottawa Conference, the Mother Country and the Dominions and Colonies have been welded together into a close economic unit. The British Commonwealth of Nations is held together loosely by constitutional bonds, and it is through blood relationship and a common loyalty to the Throne that the Empire is maintained in such remarkable unity. The secret of Imperial concord and strength is always a revelation to the rest of the world but may be mainly attributed to the simple phrase "For King and Country." King George by his personal qualities has achieved a popularity that has been accorded to few monarchs. During his reign there have been many trying and difficult periods — the War, the Irish revolt, the economic depression, but always His Majesty by exercise of wise and benevolent rule has maintained his subjects' respect and confidence for the Crown and the Government. The King's air of dignity has not prevented him from showing his personal charm in unexpected moments and his frequent kindly acts have endeared him to the people and the poorer classes particularly. It is gratifying to note that His Majesty continues in good health, and although an attack of rheumatism will prevent him from attending the Trooping of the Colour, his general health is officially stated to be satisfactory. Local observance of the King's Birthday will be as enthusiastic as on previous occasions and the military parade will prove to be the outstanding attraction. The local ceremonies are of added significance as they follow so closely the Empire Fair, which did so much to emphasise the fact that Hong Kong is a part of the British Empire. The inspiring airs of "God Save the King" will be heard all over the world to-day as Britishers reflect on the might of a great Empire and on the popularity of a great monarch.

The Crisis In Science

The pass in which science now finds itself has received attention. Professor Shapley, a leading American authority recently stated: "Even at this close range we can see the mortality of practically all current theories, both of the microcosmos and the macrocosmos. There is an overpopulation of hypotheses; they crowd and cancel one another." When hypotheses are so rife it is a sign that physical science is passing through a crisis. The world is acquiring a new outlook, a new philosophy. If there seems to be less stirring of men's souls than in the time of Copernicus and Galileo, it is because the issues are no longer connected with religion and Aristotelian doctrine. Yet deep within a spiritual change is in progress of which men may not become aware for another century. The reason for the chaos pictured by Professor Shapley lies in the necessity of soaring beyond experience. After all, experiment and observation can give us only isolated facts. Physics is not a mere collection of facts, but a structure reared on facts, with implications that far transcend experience. Never were physical theory and experience so far apart as they are now. We still delude ourselves into believing that matter comes in hard lumps. Physical generalizations are all to the contrary. An atom is no longer something that is, but something that happens. It is a collection of events, a process. Hence substance is about to be cast overboard. The tables at which we sit are no longer rigid and dead, but the result of actions and reactions of countless billions of electrons and protons. If physical science is at present confused, it is because these actions and reactions appear to obey no law. Were a physicist given nothing but haphazard electrons and protons and asked to construct an orderly cosmos, he would throw up his hands in despair. The equations would tell him that the chances are all against planets moving in predictable courses, all against tables and

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

Angler's Paradise.
Mr. Shaw has returned from his world-trip. So has Lord Rosslyn. And it is Lord Rosslyn who has brought the best news: a first-hand description of the Huka Fishing Lodge established two years ago on the Waikato River in New Zealand.

Lord Rosslyn says the Waikato is the world's perfect dry-fly river. Its crystal-clear waters, flowing amid magnificent scenery, conceal giant rainbow trout ranging from three pounds to thirteen.

Much of the fishing is done by night. Electric torch in hand, the angler descends a steep cliff by a rope-ladder. He switches off his torch, and suddenly the banks are lit up by myriads of glow-worms. By their light he can just distinguish the faint ripple as the rainbow breaks the water to suck down the fly with a gentle "plop!" This is the Empire's El Dorado for the angler. Expenses work out at £1 a day and, provided the skill is there, success is assured.

A London Parallel.

There is a London parallel to Dr. Mueller's case. In the Spanish Restaurant in Swallow-street hangs a portrait of ex-King Alfonso.

After the Spanish revolution certain Republicans demanded that the portrait should be removed. Señor Martinez refused with great politeness.

"That is a picture," he said, "not of a king, but of a man who was good to me. Why should I remove the portrait of the man to whom I owe my prosperity?"

For King Alfonso dined at the restaurant soon after it was opened, and thus brought it into prominence. The portrait of the ex-King is still in its place.

Facts You Did Not Know.

To increase the light obtained from electric bulbs a Frenchman has invented glass rings of triangular cross section to surround them.

The addition of a thin sheet of aluminum foil has been found to more than double the insulation qualities of standard gypsum wall board.

Argentina has lifted its ban on cottonseed and now permits the importation of seed guaranteed as to soundness and freedom from disease.

A new electric heater prevents ice forming on the outside of an automobile windshield and moisture condensing on the inside at the same time.

Carrying five gallons, a water bag to be worn like a knapsack and equipped with a hand pump has been invented to quench small fires.

A novel watch has a hinged mounting that can be fastened to a pocket or belt with sharp prongs and easily opened for reading the time.

News In Brief.

The management of the Repulse Bay Hotel advise that no dinner dance will be held at that establishment to-night.

chairs that will necessarily be to-morrow what they are to-day. And yet there is obviously order in the universe — order so overwhelming in its sweep that men are awed into a belief in a creative intelligence. The inconsistency between haphazard atoms and a systematic universe will disappear when at last the mathematicians discover the meaning of certain symbols that they now bandy about. Reality is reduced in the equations to Planck's constant ( $h$ ), the velocity of light ( $c$  in the formulas), and  $k$  (a vague "constant of gravitation"). They are Egyptian mysteries, these symbols, as dark and occult as Isis and Osiris. When their meaning and relation are at last revealed, the scales will fall from men's eyes. The universe will stand out in a more overpowering grandeur. And new Miltons, Beethovens, and Michelangelos will be inspired to write greater poetry, compose greater symphonies, paint greater pictures.

THE BEST MARRIAGE CHOICE

SIMILAR OR OPPOSITE TYPES?

SEX AND CHARACTER

(By Cyril Burst.)

Professor of Psychology, University of London.

Man throughout the ages has looked on woman as his inferior. But, step by step, as her position has improved, his opinion of her has begun to change. Nowadays he prefers to say, not that she is beneath him, but that she is different. "Equal and opposite" is the new formula; or, as Tennyson put it, "Woman is not undeveloped man, but diverse."

This newer theory has lent itself to easy elaboration in terms of plausible contrasts. Man, it was claimed, is active, woman passive; man is progressive, woman conservative; man is inventive, woman receptive; man is interested in himself, woman interested in the young of the race. They are hailed as two complementary halves of one single whole, as though you had sliced an apple in two with a knife and then tried to join them again to make a perfect sphere.

Honour and Obey.

From this there has arisen a new theory of successful marriage. The old view made matrimony a deplorable one-sided contract: woman was required not merely to love her lord and master, but also to honour and obey him.

To-day, however, we are told that the best union is at once a union of equals and also a union of opposites.

Of this attractive fancy the best-known advocate was Otto Weininger, a young Jew who committed suicide at the age of 23. He was shrewd enough to realise that, if we describe male and female in exactly opposite terms, then no man is entirely male and no woman is entirely female. The two elements, he supposed, are distributed among different individuals in differing proportions. And from this he deduced his "law of sexual attraction."

He declared that for a perfect match it was necessary that the entire couple should include between them a complete male and a complete female, even though the separate contributions did not come each from a single individual.

He-Man.

Thus, supposing the bridegroom is only three-quarters male, then the bride he selects should be three-quarters female. The vigorous He-man should marry the submissive She-woman. The effeminate fop should wed a manly virago. In this way he claims to give a scientific basis for the German poet's notion that in matrimony each should seek his or her "elective affinity."

When we inquire by what means we are to recognise the amount of maleness or femaleness, then our philosopher becomes more obscure.

Femaleness, he says, is a purely negative character. "The meaning of woman is to be meaningless." "A woman is neither high-minded nor low-minded, neither weak-minded nor strong-minded; in fact, she has no mind at all: she is mindless!" In short, "however degraded a man may be, he is immeasurably above the most superior woman: so much so that any comparison or classification of the two is impossible."

Bluebeard.

Thus we are thrown back once more on the old tradition of male superiority; and we end with the paradoxical notion that a ferocious Bluebeard and a frightened Fatima make a far better couple than Darcy and Jane.

I have taken this, perhaps the best known of all such philosophical theories, to show how unprofitable mere speculation is apt to prove. Sitting in your armchair, and defining your terms male and female as you fancy, you can produce any conclusion that pleases you.

The method adopted by the modern psychologist is the reverse of this. He begins by constructing scientific tests, and then goes off to measure sample groups of the population. In this way, almost every mental capacity of importance has been tested, and we can say with some precision in what ways the average man differs from the average woman.

Differences.

The differences are most marked upon the lower levels. Roughly speaking, man is superior in movement and woman in sensation. But even here generalisation is rash, for in certain forms of manual dexterity the average woman is superior, and in certain forms of sensation man is superior. As a rule, too, psychological tests show that women, on the whole, have better memories, and are as a rule vivid visualisers.

But as we climb up the mental scale the differences grow smaller and smaller; and in general intelligence there is little or no divergence between the two. If in actual life women do not reason quite so well as men, that is not because they have not the power, but because they do not use it.

Thus, when we compare the two sexes on the basis of careful tests, we find that the intellectual differences, and the mental differences far smaller than the physical.

The main fact emerging is that, so far as inborn qualities are concerned, the two groups differ but slightly; the individual differences within the one sex or the other swamp the differences between the sexes themselves.

Observe that these conclusions refer to inherited differences only. They do not profess to sum up the actual differences between men and women as we find them in everyday life. That depends on tradition and training.

If you encounter a woman who has been brought up in a mid-Victorian home you will usually find that she shows all the characteristics that the mid-Victorians ascribed to her sex. Sometimes, however, she will revolt against them any day to the opposite extreme. If, on the other hand, you take the girl who has been brought up amid post-war freedom, then she may be true to the post-war type.

But sweeping generalisations about the sexes as such are bound to be mistaken. What holds good in Mayfair will be reversed in Tooting; and what is true in Tooting will be wrong in Limehouse or in Bethnal Green.

Judge each woman as a unique individual, not as a stereotyped specimen to be known entirely from her sex.

OXYGEN CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.

Sensations Counteracted By Inhaling.

New Haven, Connecticut.
The sensations usually attendant upon the consumption of alcohol can be counteracted partly by inhaling concentrations of oxygen, the New York branch of the American Psychological Association was informed here recently.

The report on intoxication was presented by two doctors who by certain tests found a curious similarity between ordinary drunkenness and the symptoms manifested by mountain climbers, aviators and other persons working or dwelling in places where the oxygen content of the atmosphere is low.

Effects produced both by alcohol and by anoxemia — lack of oxygen — are: Retarded mental processes, loss of motor co-ordination, loquacity, tendency to repeat phrases and activities, lack of self-criticism and releasing of inhibitions. — Reuter.

Correspondence.

"POLITICS IN CHINA."

[To The Editor "China Mail,"]

Sir,—"I am most pleased to inform the House that the Sino-Japanese armistice was signed yesterday." These few words in which Sir John Simon announced to the House of Commons that a Truce had at last been signed between China and Japan on May 31, were received amid general cheers and those cheers have no doubt echoed around the World by now. Whatever the rights and wrongs of the cause of the fighting were, everyone is intensely glad that the actual loss of life and devastation of property have ceased, at any rate for the time being.

But a little black cloud to mar one's hopefulness quickly appears on the horizon and that little black cloud appears in the form of that wily old fox, Feng Yu-hsiang coupled with the south-west Political Council's assurance of its unqualified support to his anti-Japanese campaign.

Feng is, we are told, organising an army of 150,000 men for the sole purpose of waging war on Japan and he solemnly declares that he will never recognise any truce reached by the Nanking command, yet the next day he issues a declaration of loyalty to Nanking.

But Nanking signed the truce so how can he be loyal to Nanking and fight the Japanese at the same time when Nanking has ordained that the fighting must cease?

Mr. T. V. Soong declares in America that there is no chaos in China "except where the Japanese invasion and Japanese intrigue" have made it. Well, now the Japanese "invasion and Japanese intrigue" have ceased, so who is creating chaos now?

Feng and the South West Political Council obviously, because Nanking decrees that the fighting shall cease and Feng decrees otherwise, yet Feng is loyal to Nanking, the de-facto Government of China!

I have closely studied politics in China for more than twenty years so when Feng Yu-hsiang's troops up as it has in the present situation I look up my records to brush up my memory of Feng's history and this is just a little bit of it, sufficient however to show the South-west political Council that they are backing the wrong horse. Indeed I will go further than that and say they are backing an exceedingly doubtful starter. He may carry their money, but even if he does, you can lay heavy odds to a tin kettle that he won't try, even if he does start, which I very much doubt. So the South-west Political Council will certainly lose not only their money but also a good deal of "face." My records show that in 1924 when Wu Pei-fu drove Chang Tso-lin's forces out of China proper beyond the Great Wall back into Manchuria, Feng who was left in Peking to look after things there in Wu Pei-fu's absence, turned traitor and smote Wu Pei-fu, his own ally in the back so that Wu Pei-fu, caught between Chang Tso-lin forces and Feng's had to flee by sea to the Yangtze, and that was more or less the end of Wu Pei-fu politically.

And traitor Feng is the man the South West Political Council are backing. My advice to them, and it is given unasked but in the friendliest spirit as a near neighbour, is to keep out of complications with Mr. Feng Yu-hsiang, and concentrate their entire efforts on eliminating Bolshevism in China, like Chiang Kai-shek is so wisely doing in Central China.

June Day Dinner.

Local Heriotians, who founded the Hong Kong Heriot Club five years ago, gathered together last night at the Gloucester to celebrate their annual June Day dinner, in commemoration of George Heriot, who founded the well known Edinburgh educational institution in 1629.

Last night's function, which was well attended, was carried out in the usual traditional manner befitting to the occasion and was heartily enjoyed by those present.

The toast of the evening "The Pious Memory of George Heriot" was proposed by Mr. J. B. Kinghorn, president of the Club.

BURIED FAITHLESS WIFE ALIVE.

ATROCIOUS CRIME AT MARTINEZ.

EIGHT FILIPINOS CHARGED.

Martinez, California.

Eight Filipinos have been arrested here on a charge of burying a young woman alive in a ceremony prescribed by their cult as the punishment for unfaithful wives.

Authorities said others would be arrested and charged with participation in the horrible death of a 26-year-old Filipino girl, whose body was exhumed from a hidden grave on an island in the San Joaquin River.

By the light of flaming torches, investigators reported, the young wife, who was an expectant mother, was thrown into her grave and earth shovelled over her living body.

She had been accused of unfaithfulness to her sick husband when brought before a meeting of the cult earlier the same night. Her husband, who has since died, was ready enough to forgive her but the women members of the cult demanded her death.

She was bound and gagged, police say, and carried by car to the island where two Filipino labourers were roused from bed to dig her grave. While men members of the cult held torches, women hurried her into the grave.

And into her face they threw a purse containing $130 which she was accused of stealing from her husband's brother. Then earth was shovelled over her living body till she suffocated.

The alleged leader of the cult, which has a large membership, has confessed to the crime, reports the local State Prosecutor.

"It was justice," he is reported as saying in explanation, "our justice! She was an unfaithful wife."

The story of her death was brought to authorities by a Filipino who had quarrelled with the cult leader. The suspects were arrested and questioned and finally pointed out the grave of the unfortunate young wife.

Four Filipino women were among those in custody. — Reuter.

PETROL FROM COAL TAR.

New Development In British Industry.

BIG PROGRESS MADE.

London.

Considerable progress is being made not only in solving some of the outstanding problems of the low temperature carbonisation of coal, but also in the conversion of tar into oil and motor spirit, according to the latest report of the Fuel Research Board.

The new development regarding carbonisation has been due to the use of brick retorts instead of cast iron retorts, and with a medium coking coal a "throughput" of 10 tons per day had been maintained giving a yield of coke containing approximately nine per cent of volatile matter, and suitable for use as a domestic fuel in ordinary grates.

Trails have been carried out to see how far the brick retort is suitable for producing a satisfactory lump smokeless fuel from small coal. "Throughputs" of up to six tons per day were attained and good smokeless fuels had been produced.

Attention has been given to the possible preparation of lubricating oils from coal tar and hydrogenation products. A yield, small up to the present, of an oil which behaved like a good lubricating oil, has been produced by the action of aluminium chloride on certain substances obtained from light oils. The suggestion that a lubricating oil could be obtained by blending a partially hydrogenated tar oil with another oil, not having lubricating properties, is being followed up. — Reuter.

To-Day's Short Story.

WHAT JORKENS HAS TO PUT UP WITH

By Lord Dunsany.

TO say that amongst all those that have read any of the tales of Mr. Jorkens's travels that I have recorded none have felt any doubts of any of them would be absurd: such doubts have been felt and even expressed. But what has impressed me very considerably is the fair-minded attitude taken up by the general public, an attitude that may be summarised as a firm determination not to disbelieve a man's story merely because it is unusual, but to await the final verdict of science when science shall have arrived at the point at which it is able to pronounce on such matters with certainty. Then, should the verdict be against Jorkens, and not till then, will a sporting public turn upon him that scornful disbelief that they are far too fair-minded to show without good and sufficient proofs.

I myself meanwhile am careful to record nothing he tells me against which anyone in the Billiards Club or elsewhere has been able to bring any proof that would definitely rule it out in a court of law. And it would be interesting to see for how long in such a court arguments that may be lightly advanced now against the exact truth of any one of his tales would stand up against ridicule of counsel. But the sporting attitude that the public have adopted towards him is more to Jorkens than a verdict in any court of law.

Curiously enough, it is in the Billiards Club itself, the source of all these stories, that the most un-sporting attitude is often shown to Jorkens. For instance, only the other day one of our members was unnecessarily rude to him, though with only a single word. I need hardly say it was Terbut. The word was not in itself a rude one, but was somehow all the more insidious for that. Also it was really a single word, and not a short sentence, as is often the case when a writer says to you, "I will tell it to you in one word."

But I will tell the story. We were discussing billiards, which is not a thing we often do in the Billiards Club. There is, I suppose, some sort of feeling that if anyone talks of billiards there his imagination or his experience can provide him with nothing better; billiards being, as it were, bedrock in the Billiards Club. In just the same way at the Athenaeum, although the bird is inseparable from the club's presiding goddess, one seldom if ever orders an owl for one's lunch. But we were discussing billiards to-day, and debating whether bonzoline balls or the old ivory kind were the better.

I will not record the discussion, for it has nothing to do with Jorkens.

BEGGAR RECEIVES £10,000.

Grateful Government's Repayment.

REVOLUTION VICTIM.

Belgrade.

Michael Nikiforovich Bardigin—not long ago a beggar, on the streets of Moscow—is a rich man to-day. A grateful government is paying him £10,000.

During the war, Bardigin was so prosperous that he was in a position to make large grants to the Serbian Relief Fund. He also advanced money to a Serbian mission in Russia.

The Bolshevik revolution ruined him. Reduced to abject poverty, he begged for bread in Moscow. Then he fled to Poland.

From Poland he made his way to France. He still had in his possession a receipt for 300,000 gold roubles which he had lent to the Serbian delegates in Moscow at the end of the war. But he despaired of recovering the money as the Serbians existed no longer.

He presented this receipt at the Yugoslav legation in Paris. There he was advanced enough money to travel to Belgrade to put his case before the courts. He was given £3,000 immediately. The case has since been examined by the courts of Appeal and final appeal and now Bardigin is to be paid a further sum of £7,000. — Reuter.

kins, but it may interest my readers to hear that it was held at the Billiards Club that the bonzoline ball was unique among modern substitutes, in being better than the old genuine article. It was as we had decided that, that some young member who ought to have known better, seeing Jorkens near him as he looked up, suddenly blurted out: "Have you ever seen a unicorn, Jorkens?"

Of course, it was not the way to speak to an elder man. Of course, the implication was obvious. And Jorkens saw in a moment that the young fellow did not believe in the existence of unicorns at all. In any case, he had not yet passed that time of life in which one believes nothing that the ages have handed down to us until we have been able to test it for ourselves.

"I deprecate that hard-and-fast line between fabulous animals and those that you all chance to have seen," said Jorkens. "What does it amount to, practically, but a line drawn round Regent's Park? That's all it is really. Everything inside that line is an animal you readily believe in. Everything outside it is fabulous. It means you believe in an animal if you have seen it in the Zoo, otherwise not. However full history is of accounts of the unicorn and the most detailed descriptions, still you go off to Regent's Park on a Sunday, and if there is not one there waiting for your bun you disbelieve in the unicorn. Oh, well, I was like that myself till I saw one."

"You saw one?" said the young fellow who had started the topic. "I'll tell you," said Jorkens. "I was camped once by the Northern Guaso Nyero, or rather I was camped two hundred and fifty yards from it, a distance that just makes all the difference, for two hundred yards is all that the mosquito flies from his home. Of course he has a good many homes; that's the trouble; but, as he prefers a river frontage, it's a very good thing to camp that far from a river. Not that it amounts to much, for Africa can always get you some other way. But there it was."

"Well, I was collecting heads for a museum, and had been at it for some time, with a white hunter and eighty natives, trekking through Africa; and I was beginning to get pretty tired of it. I was sitting by one of our camp fires after supper, and I was gazing into the glow of the smouldering logs and watching the fire-flies gliding backwards and forwards, and thinking all the while of the lights of London. And the more the fire-flies slowly grew into multitudes, and the more the fire glowed, the more I longed for London. In that mood I asked the hunter what we should do next day; and, whatever he suggested going after, I pointed out I had shot it already. Which was perfectly true.

"And winds came out of the forest, or over the plains, and softly played with the smoke going up from our logs of cedar, and the visions changed and changed in the glow of the fire, and every now and then the hunter would make some new suggestion, till I said petulantly: 'Find me something I haven't shot yet.'

"And he said: 'Very well, I will.' 'What is it?' I said. 'And he wouldn't say. 'I kept on asking him, but he wouldn't tell me. The man whose job it was, the askari we called him, came and put more logs on the fire, and we sat on long with little cold winds on our backs and the warmth on our hands and feet; but still he would not say. 'Why not?' I asked him at last. 'Because you'd think me mad,' he said. 'Well, aren't you?' I asked. 'Partly my insinuation was true and partly it was the product of some unreasonable irritation that had come over me, and Africa was responsible for both.'

"Next day he moved our camp to the edge of the river, and we waited there a long time; I don't remember how long, quite a fortnight; and all the while he stuck to his promise to find me this new beast that I had never shot."

HOME CRICKET

BOWLER YARD FASTER
IN SUNSHINEWEST INDIES HANDICAPPED
BY COLD WEATHER

WORLD'S BEST FIELDSMAN

(By A. M. Crawley.)
(Oxford and Kent.)

HOW many people realise the difficulty of organising a cricket tour from the West Indies? asks A. M. Crawley in the Sunday Dispatch. Here we are apt to lump all those islands together as if they were one colony, and take their combined cricket team for granted.

The facts are surprising. The only route from Trinidad to Jamaica goes round by the Panama Canal and takes a week. The other islands are anything from one to three days' journey apart by sea.

If it was not for the fact that every boy who is old enough to stand immediately begins to hold a bat in the West Indies and that cricket is almost a religion, we should never see a touring side from these islands.

Almost Strangers.

Of the 15 players who are in England now, 5 come from Jamaica, 5 from Trinidad, 3 from Barbados, and 1—Christiani, the reserve wicket-keeper—from British Guiana.

At home, those who live in different islands only see each other on the rare occasions when trial matches are held in Jamaica before foreign tours, or—in the case of the islands which are closer together—when they meet in the inter-island cricket tournament.

Unless they are playing a touring side, the West Indians only play two-day matches at their week-ends, and usually only Saturday matches. And both in cricket and commercially there is an intense rivalry between the islands which does not make the job of the selectors any easier.

Nevertheless, one well-known cricket "manager" has said that he would rather run any West Indian team than an M.C.C. one, and the present side (and I am not saying this because it is the usual thing to say) seem a very friendly lot.

Now as to their cricketing possibilities. If the weather remains cold they will never be a good side. It is not merely that their fingers and muscles get stiff in cold (and any day which is without sun is cold to them), but cold makes them short of breath.

Like Cold Water.

Griffith, their opening bowler, was done in after his first four overs at Pelham simply for that reason. I imagine it is rather the same sort of feeling as you and I get when we jump into very cold water—one's breath catches in the stomach.

In the sun the West Indians will be a very different kettle of fish. It shone for an hour when they played at Pelham, and they began to bowl—and move—fast.

Martindale was at once a yard faster than he had been the day before. He has a very long run, an easy action, and in Barbados they compare him to the Constantine of old.

If he can reproduce that pace here he will be a very fast bowler, though most of us watching him thought his action more likely to keep him at fast-medium.

Griffith is said not to be as fast as he was in 1928. He himself said that when it comes to a big match he can be just as fast—and there is no doubt that he moves the ball about more than he used to—he can make it go either way in the air and off the wicket, and he varies his pace.

Valentine's Action Best.

Valentine, another fast medium bowler, has the best action of all and those who played him thought he might prove the quickest of the three on English wickets.

If Constantine can play in the Test matches, he and Griffith and Martindale will be a very fine foundation to the attack. If the wicket is "hard," Grant, however, is not at all certain whether Constantine will be allowed to play more than once.

Both he and Francis, who is another fast bowler and used to open with Constantine, are playing in the Lancashire League, where they are a considerable draw. Either would be splendid support, and Constantine is still worth 50 runs an innings in the field.

He and Francis both go back to the West Indies during the winter, but except for a little coaching they have no definite occupation there now. All the rest of the team have full-time jobs entirely apart from cricket.

World's Finest Field.

Then as medium-paced right-handers there are Da Costa and Merry. Da Costa is undoubtedly going to be one of the mainstays of the team. He shapes as a really high-class batsman, and if he can restrain his impetuosity (how I sympathise with him!) should make many hundreds.

He bowls off breaks, varied with one that goes with his arm, and Percy Chapman, who has played him in the West Indies, says that he came off the pitch almost as fast as Maurice Tate.

Da Costa is also the best field on the side. Now we had a discussion about fielding at Pelham. It arose, not unnaturally, over Constantine. Chapman said that he thought him the finest field in the world—and then qualified it by saying, "But I am not sure Wally Hammond doesn't run him pretty close—he makes so little fuss about it."

George Headley agreed about Constantine, but said that he was very showy and pleased the crowd, and that he thought Da Costa was almost as quick and perhaps a little safer.

Impersonal Percy.

One curious thing was that none of us thought of placing Percy Chapman himself—which shows how impersonally he talks about cricket. Constantine or no, there is no finer field anywhere than Chapman.

One thing I will add. There is an unexpressed but wide spread feeling in this country that any side other than the Australians which comes here ought to be easy game for England.

Some of the West Indians may lack a little in temperament and experience, but as far as actual cricket technique goes they are as good as the very best and better to watch than most of our counties.

KID CHOCOLATE TO TOUR EUROPE.

Return Fight With Watson.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Kid Chocolate, Cuban feather and junior-lightweight champion of the world, sailed on the Italian liner Conte Savola to-day for Europe, where he will fight in both divisions.

It was learned before his departure that negotiations are under way for a return match between the Cuban and Tom "Seaman" Watson in London.

Chocolate's European tour was supposed to have been made earlier but because of the Watson bout the campaign was postponed.

BATTALINO AND
COMEBACK.Former Featherweight
Boxing Titlist.

Hartford, Conn., May 25.

Christopher "Bat" Battalino, former king of the featherweights, is anxious to get into the ring again, it was revealed today.

Battalino, who took some bad beatings when he grew heavy and stepped out of the featherweight class, has been doing gymnasium work, and has his eye on the summer months and the possibility of some good outdoor fights.

He also has been doing roadwork, and is considering a nose operation to clear up clogged nasal passages.

"If I start fighting again," said Bat, "Pete Reilly will be my manager."

Reilly formerly had Bat's contract, but it expired last fall.

Last year, except for victories over Billy Shaw, Eddie Ran, Billy Townsend and a no-contest bout with Freddie Miller, Battalino lost all his fights. He lost twice each to Billy and Frankie Petrolle, brothers, and suffered severe defeats at the hands of Eddie Holmes and Barney Ross.—United Press.

"AUSTRALIANS ARE NOT SQUEALERS."Plum Warner Urges
Cricket Peace.

London, May 25.

Mr. "Plum" Warner, who was manager of the victorious English Test team in Australia, speaking in London to-day, pleaded for cricket peace between England and Australia.

He stressed the many happy memories of the games between the two countries and paid a tribute to the great cricket ability of the Australians.

"It is absurd," he concluded, "to describe the Australians as squealers."

Huge Crowds Expected To See
Ryder Cup Battle Next Month

London, May 24.

CONDITIONS for the British Open Golf Championship, in which many United States players, including the whole Ryder Cup team, are expected to compete, have been issued.

They remain unchanged—one hundred players qualify after 36 holes by strokes to take part in the championship and the 60 players returning the lowest aggregate scores on the first day continue to play the final 36 holes on the second day.

The championship, to be played over the world's most famous course, St. Andrews, The Old Course will be used for the championship rounds, and the New and Old Courses for the qualifying stages. The date is from July 3 to July 7.

It is understood that the Royal and Ancient Club, which is handling the arrangements for the tournament, will depend on stewards to control the crowds. Experts are somewhat dubious regarding this for they recall past championships at St. Andrews, when the crowds have made play practically impossible with spectators crossing the line of flight, encroaching on the greens, and more than one of them being struck by a drive, and thereby either helping or hindering the player. The lesser lights among the competitors, in particular, have suffered from the crowds at St. Andrews.

It was with a view to lessening this crowd problem that a suggestion was advanced to limit the number of players in the field in the final stages. It was suggested that only 60 should qualify, and the field on the last day be limited to 40. But "R and A" is autocratic, and rarely reveals its secret deliberations, so nobody knows whether it even considered the idea.

Another suggestion was the adoption of the Carnoustie plan. In 1931 when Tommy Armour won the championship at Carnoustie, the arrangements for controlling the crowds were described as the best ever. True, Carnoustie authorities were aided considerably by the burn which trickles through the course, and which effectively isolates the last three holes, but there was also an ingenious system of ropes that kept the people in check.

This may or may not be possible at St. Andrews, but it is a fact that because the two courses adjoin and several holes run to the sea-shore, it is extremely difficult to keep out "gate-crashers."—United Press.

GOLF AS I SEE IT.

Modern Grips And How To Use Them.

HOLD FOR THE WOMAN GOLFER.

Even as there are different kinds of stances, so there are different kinds of grips, which are (a) the palm grip, (b) the overlapping and (c) the interlocking. The palm grip is based on the style of old time golfers, and the club is held in the palms of both hands, with the hands being linked together in any way. This grip is a natural grip and is usually adopted by anyone playing golf for the first time.

It has its advantages but also its disadvantages, and because of the last-named it is now superseded by the overlapping grip by most of the leading golfers.

Its advantages are that it is the natural way to pick up and hold a club, and as such should be the safest for golfers to use. But unfortunately all is not gold that glitters, and this grip of apparent natural simplicity has its snags. The snags may be gathered from a name that has been given to it of "the hitter's grip," which will give an idea of where the trouble lies. Hitting at golf must not be indiscriminate, and must only creep into the well-timed swing at a point when the club head is on its downward arc, and well on to the way to impact with the ball. But with this type of grip there is a tremendous desire for the right hand to take charge of the swing from the start, and to transform the swing into a hit. The only result of this can be inaccurate striking of the ball, so that those who use this grip would say that the left hand must lead and the right hand must follow, dexter only asserting itself in the latter part of the down swing, to put grip into the shot at the moment of impact, to insure that the ball is not hit with a floppy action.

The palm grip has one advantage over other grips. That is, as is often the case with women, if the player is not possessed of very strong hands or wrists, and has difficulty in controlling the club unless all the fingers are gripping the shaft. The palm grip will give such a player more length than the other types of grip.

The overlapping grip is played with the hands in such a position on the grip that the V's made by the thumbs and forefingers are in line, and the little finger of the right hand, instead of being on the shaft is resting on the knuckle point between the forefinger and the middle finger, with the forefinger of the left hand gripping the shaft underneath it. The interlocking grip is similar except that the forefinger of the left hand, instead of being placed round the shaft of the club is inserted in the V between the little forefinger and its next door neighbour and rests on the back of the right hand. If these grips are given a trial, and from personal experience I recommend the overlapping variety, it will be found that the right hand is automatically displaced from its commanding position, and that an evenly distributed grip is given.

So much for grips. Now for the other functions of the hands, in which I incorporate the wrists, as they are, for all intents and purposes, reliant on one another for their movements. The first thing that must be avoided is anything approaching stiffness, as this locks the action, something in the way of a fixed wheel bicycle as opposed to one with a free wheel. A stiff wrist action means an imperfect swing, with its imperfection of striking and follow through. What must be aimed at is a relaxed position, which is a mean difference between stiffness and complete looseness, the latter being as dangerous in its opposing way as the former. The club head is led away by the hands moving slightly on the line of swing, before the club head itself has started to move. This leading is done by a pushing action of the left hand, wrist and arm. But it must not be made a conscious action, and is brought about by the inward turn of the left hip towards the ball. That is to say, the first movement of the pivot is responsible for the first movement of the hands, and the hands themselves do not start this action. If the hands are made to start this action, the clubhead will start in a swing that is so fast that the weight will remain on the left foot throughout the swing, instead of being transferred by a pivotal action; and a complete lack of power in the stroke will result. At the moment of impact, if all things are as they should be, the hands and wrists will be in the same position as they were in the address, but immediately after impact the right wrist must start to turn over the left wrist, in a scissors formation, so that on the follow through, a most important part of the stroke, which must be free and unchecked, the two wrists have crossed one another.

This is caused by the right wrist really following its natural inclination to take the club head on its correct path in the follow through. Should the wrists not cross over, the club tends to develop into a push, the club head following through straight ahead, instead of upwards.—(China Mail Copyright.)

LAWN TENNIS

FREDA JAMES NEW
BRITISH STAR.Beats Betty Nuthall
And Mary Heley.

EILEEN BENNETT'S LAPSE.

Miss Freda James, the young Lawn tennis player from Nottingham who last season was popularly supposed to be only a doubles player, has become in the English spring tournaments a veritable terror to the big ranking players.

Miss James was ranked number eleven on last year's performances. She has now followed up her victory at Hampstead over Miss Mary Heley, ranked Number One, by defeating Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall, ranked number three, at Paddington. Miss James won by 5/6, 6/2, 7/5.

In the third set the loser led by 4/3 and 30 love. At that critical juncture she served two double faults.

Mrs. Whittingstall's career has been punctuated ever since as Eileen Bennett she competed in the Junior events with psychological breaks of that character.

It is probable that Miss James' physique, which looks very fragile, will furnish their surmountable obstacle to her reaching the top class.

One day she pulls out a remarkable win and the next she appears to tire after a set.

She needs a couple of days rest between important matches and tournament arrangements can never give that recuperating period.

Following on her victory over Mrs. Whittingstall the Nottingham girl could not stay the course against Mrs. King (formerly Miss Huddford) ranked number six. Mrs. King won by 1/6, 6/4, 6/2. The better player lost.—Router.

TUNG HWA DRAW
IN MANILA.Better Team Affected
By Extreme Heat.

Manila, May 23. The Tung Hwa Soccer eleven of Shanghai and the team of the Casino Espanol played to a tie at 2-all here, this afternoon. The visiting Chinese team had all the better of the argument for the larger portion of the game, the local eleven making a furious rally in the last five minutes to gain a tie, after having been held scoreless up to that time.

H. K. Chen, the inside left, and K. T. Chen, the inside right, scored for the visitors, both putting the ball into the net in the first half. Apparently the Chinese were severely affected by the heat, for their defence wilted towards the end of the second half and the Manilans scored twice with but a few minutes to go.—United Press.

Test Skipper's Century

London, To-day. Yorkshire secured the lead in the Cricket Championship yesterday for the first time this season when they beat Gloucestershire by ten wickets and Sussex dropped points to Surrey.

Derbyshire beat Essex in the only other finished match. Storer compiling 232, the highest individual score of the season.

Middlesex won first innings points and Worcester made a remarkable second innings recovery to beat the West Indies by the narrow margin of one wicket. In the same match Barling and Cook registered their second centuries of the season, while Townsend and Chalk, the Dark Blue batsmen, each recorded their second three-figure knocks this season when opposed to Leicester in a drawn game.

Jack Hearn, who was dismissed when 93 against Notts, scored 153 in characteristic manner against Glamorgan, but, in spite of good bowling by Ian Peebles, Middlesex were 75 runs behind when stumps were drawn.

SAMMY WRAGG WINS ON CHATELAINE

Surprise Triumph For Mr. Thornton Smith.

PECULIARITY OF OAKS WINNER

London, To-day. Sammy Wragg, taking over Chatelaine from Fred Fox at the last minute, won the Oaks over 1½ miles from a field of fourteen starters at Epsom yesterday.

The result was as follows:
1. Chatelaine (S. Wragg) 25-1.
2. Soffatara (S. Donoghue) 20-1.
3. Furtor (Jones) 100-8.
Won by 1½ lengths and 2 lengths.

Glorious summer weather brought countless thousands to Epsom for Ladies Day to watch the Fillys Classic.

H. M. the King and Queen Mary, accompanied by the Princess Royal attended.

The result was a surprise victory for Mr. Thornton Smith, Director of the famous store of Fortnum, Mason and also a Government director of the Ministry of Agriculture. Lord Stanley, son of Lord Derby, winner of the last Derby, and owner of Versicle, was most disappointed in the failure of his filly. He fully hoped to repeat his father's victory.

Sammy Wragg, the jockey had his first classic victory on Chatelaine, who had not won a race before in six outings. She is the most temperamental horse and is always accompanied by a white goat stable companion. — Reuter.

CANAVARRO COACHES IN SHANGHAI

Interporter Drops Amateur Status.

WINS FIRST CHAMPIONSHIP AT 15

Shanghai, May 30.

IT is perhaps a natural outcome of the tremendous growth of Shanghai and its keen competitive spirit in sports that professional instructors are beginning to find it a place where they can earn a living. For several years, professional golf, riding, boxing, and billiards instructors have been operating here and apparently have met with no small amount of success. It can be said, anyway, that George Gray has entirely changed the character of Shanghai billiards, and there were very few

SOLDIERS CLUB BILLIARDS TOURNAMENT

"B" Company Borderers Beat "A."

CLAPP REGISTERS 34 BREAK.

(By SPOT BALL).

"B" Company, South Wales Borderers, defeated "A" Company of the same regiment by 118 points in the Soldiers' Club Billiards Tournament on Wednesday night.

Pte. Clapp, last year's finalist in the Army Championship, recorded a fine break of 34 to beat Pte. (85) Jones by 100 points.

The closest match of the evening was that between Pte. Hancock and C. S. M. Brown, the latter emerging winner of a stirring struggle by one point.

During the course of the game Brown registered a 31 break in catching up his opponent, who with a series of small breaks had taken a substantial lead.

The following were the detailed scores:—

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 24.—Police took Al Stecher of Joplin, Mo., to jail in nothing but his wrestling trunks tonight, but it had no effect on Stecher's grappling ability. After spending fifteen minutes in Birmingham's Lockup Stecher returned to the ring and threw George Romanoff of Los Angeles in two falls out of three.

CANAVARRO and M. W. Lo photographed before the Interporter doubles match at the K.C.C. last year. Both players then stated that it would probably be their last Interporter.

of the old school locally who at their best could compare with the younger champions of to-day.

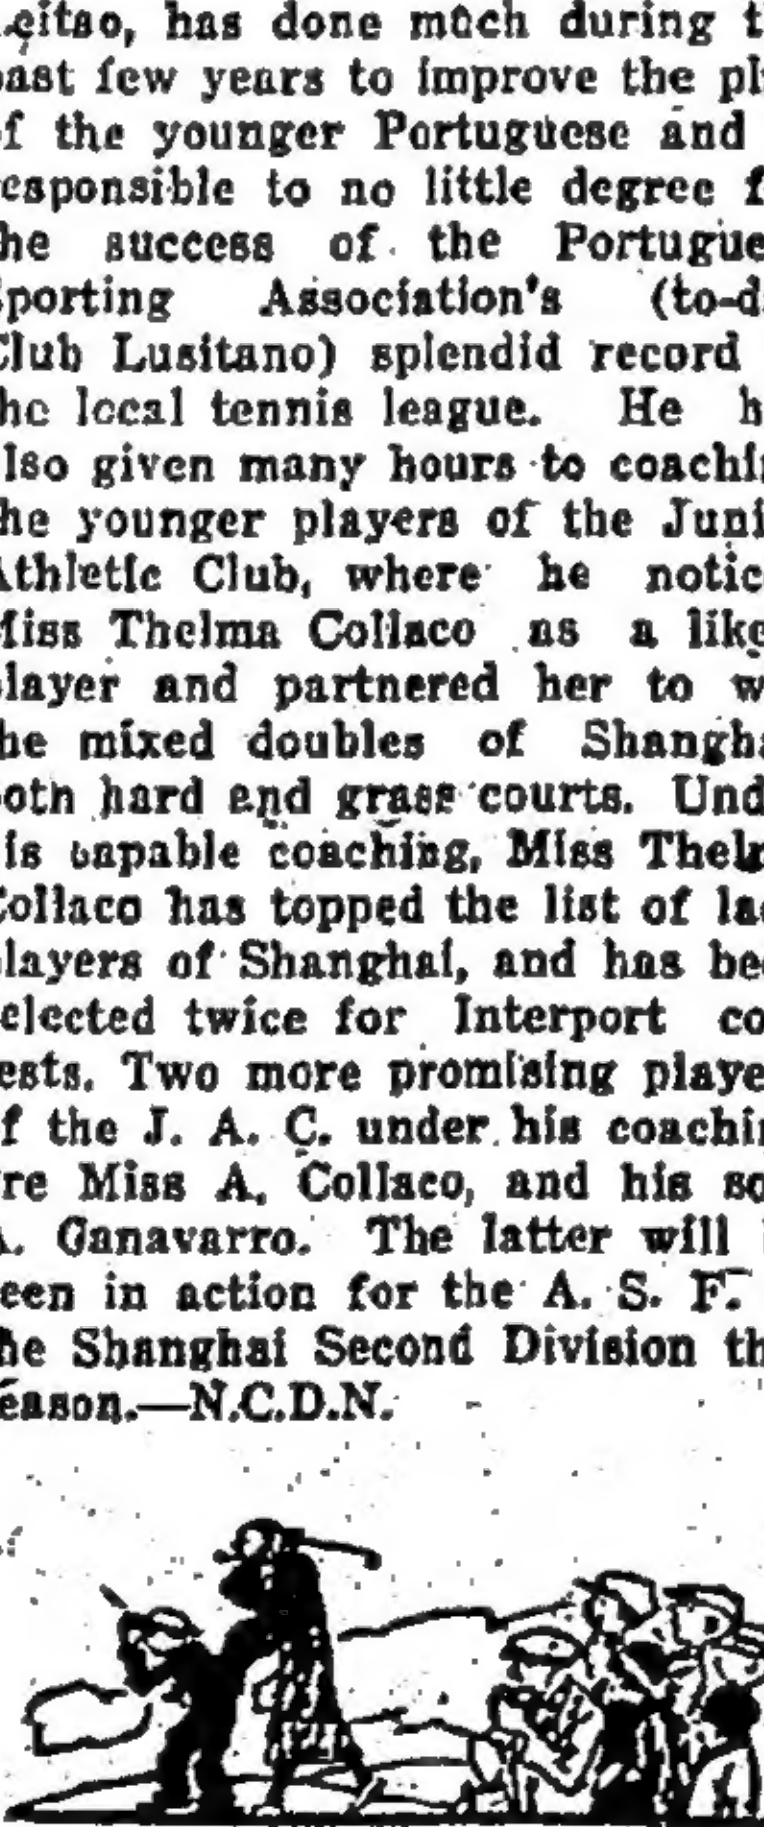

The Settlement now is to have a professional lawn tennis instructor, and one with whom it has been very well acquainted for many years, for Raul Canavarro, one of the leading tournament players for a long time, has decided to drop his amateur status and will endeavour to make profit out of his skill at the game.

Canavarro was born 38 years ago in Macao. He showed interest in a tennis racket before his first school days and later on commenced his early efforts on a hard court in a garden at the rear of his home. At the age of 15 he won the Macao championship and from then until 1915 he represented Macao in the Interporter contests between the Portuguese of Hong Kong and Macao.

Later, he was transferred to Shanghai and in 1920 H. Toussaint noticed him as a likely player and invited him to be his partner for the Shanghai doubles championship, which they won for four years.

In 1923, Canavarro won the singles championship and the hard-court doubles championship, and from 1920 to 1933 he played in Interporter tennis matches.

Canavarro, together with E. L. Leitao, has done much during the past few years to improve the play of the younger Portuguese and is responsible to no little degree for the success of the Portuguese Sporting Association's (to-day Club Lusitano) splendid record in the local tennis league. He has also given many hours to coaching the younger players of the Junior Athletic Club, where he noticed Miss Thelma Collico as a likely player and partnered her to win the mixed doubles of Shanghai, both hard and grass courts. Under his capable coaching, Miss Thelma Collico has topped the list of lady players of Shanghai, and has been selected twice for Interporter contests. Two more promising players of the J. A. C. under his coaching are Miss A. Collico, and his son, A. Canavarro. The latter will be seen in action for the A. S. F. in the Shanghai Second Division this season.—N.C.D.N.

BORDERERS RETAIN TITLE FROM LINS.

Close Encounter Won By Six Points.

SMALL UNITS WIN.

(By SPOT BALL).

The South Wales Borderers, holders of the Garrison Billiards League, retained the championship on Thursday night by defeating the Lincolnshire Regiment by the very narrow margin of 6 points.

The Borderers won the last encounter by over 200 points.

The Borderers were fortunate to win, only the remarkable recoveries made by C/Sgt. Jarman and Pte. Walters enabling the holders to retain the title.

The Small Units recorded their first win by beating the Royal Army Medical Corps by 118 points, while the Royal Artillery beat the Royal Engineers by 52 points.

Supporters Handicap Abbott.

Pte. Abbott of the Lincolns played a very fine game and only failed to keep his man from reaching his 100 mark by being put off by being continually reminded by some of his supporters concerning the state of the game. He, however, scored a fine 35 break.

Pte. Walters, who was at bat time 80 points behind Sgt. Green, recorded a 32 break and followed this up by several minor ones to pass his opponent's score and win by 12 points.

Jarman, the runner-up in the Colony Championship, should have been beaten by Herriot. The Lincolnshire player, after leading by a substantial margin, played safe billiards and was consequently beaten by the Army champion.

Clarke's Impressive Play.

The Small Units enjoyed an easy win over the Royal Army Medical Corps by 118 points. S/Sgt. Clarke played brilliantly registering two good breaks of 34 and 30.

He will prove the only obstacle to an all-Borderers' final in the Army Individual Championship, which commences on Monday.

Dvr. Gray, who last week sensationally beat Sgt. Green of the Lincolns with an unfinished break very nearly repeated his performance when he recovered from an 80 points deficit to lead Pte. Smith of the Medical Corps by 16 points. The latter, however, played open billiards, during the last forty points to win by 22 points.

The Artillery won their fixture against the Royal Engineers at the Soldiers' Club by 52 points.

Delicious Summer Salads

Careful Washing Of Greens.

SIMPLE RECIPES

You may serve only one salad a day during the hot weather, or a salad at lunch and a salad at dinner, as you feel inclined.

When making salads, remember the following points: Wash green salads carefully in cold water to which a little Condor's fluid has been added, to remove any dirt and insects. Trim off and throw away any unsound portions. Drain well, if possible, in a salad basket or a colander, or wire sieve. Wrap loosely in a kitchen cloth and shake lightly, then put into refrigerator if you have one, to chill and crisp.

To dress salads to eat with birds, toss greens gently in a bowl containing a little French dressing. Sometimes I use lettuce, sometimes cress, sometimes cabbage or watercress, simply coated with French dressing, with birds. Again, I vary the dressing by the addition of one or two chopped olives, pickles or capers, a tablespoon of minced celery, onions or pimento, or a little tomato catsup. Here is the dressing I usually use as a foundation.

Simple French Dressing

1/2 cup salad oil
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon mustard
2 1/2 tablespoons vinegar
1/2 teaspoon castor sugar
Dash paprika and celery salt
Mix seasonings. Stir in oil, then vinegar. Beat till thick and smooth. Can be made in a larger quantity, bottled, and used as required. Sometimes I make enough on Saturday to last me all the week. You can vary this dressing as you please; by adding any of the additions given to green salads, or a little chopped chives, parsley, or both, or a few drops of Worcester sauce, or a few drops of crushed herbs. But I prefer to make a simple salad dressing, and add other ingredients as the fancy seizes me. Unless I know that guests don't like garlic, I always rub my salad bowl with little cut garlic before mixing the dressing.

SPINACH RAMEKINS RECIPE

Ingredients:—1 lb. spinach; salt; 1 onion; juice of 1/2 lemon; 6 ozs. grated cheese; a little butter; 2 eggs; toasted breadcrumbs.

Put the prepared spinach into a saucepan with the water that clings to it, add salt, cover the pan, and cook gently till the spinach is quite tender, stirring occasionally.

Drain and rub through a sieve. Mix in the grated onion, the strained lemon juice, about two thirds of the grated cheese, and some melted butter.

Separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs. Whip the whites stiffly and fold them lightly into the spinach. Turn this mixture into greased individual dishes.

Mix the rest of the cheese with the egg yolks, sprinkle over the ramekins, add some toasted breadcrumbs, and bake for about fifteen minutes.

COMBINATION URGED OF BAKING POWDERS

Did you know that there are three types of baking powder—combination, phosphate, tartrate—and that food experts have discovered that for best results these different types should be used in different amounts? Total consumption of the combination type is nearly twice that of either the phosphate or tartrate types, and is almost half of the total used.

or you could substitute a sliced onion.

Torbay Salad.

2 cups flaked cooked whitefish
1 cup diced cucumber
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon salad oil
Mayonnaise to moisten.
Celery Salt.

Lemon juice and oil should be mixed together. Pour over fish. Stand at least 30 minutes. Stir in cucumber, seasoned with celery salt, moistened with mayonnaise. Serve in scallop shells, lined with lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with minced parsley. You can use sear or one of the cheaper kinds of fish for this.

Fruit Salad Dressing.

1 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grapefruit juice
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup cream
1/4 cup pineapple juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 eggs

Heat all the fruit juices together in the top of a double boiler. Beat eggs with sugar till light. Then stir into hot fruit juice. Cook till mixture coats the spoon like boiled custard. Then stand on top of double boiler in a basin of cold water and beat mixture till smooth. Cool, fold in whipped cream. Serve very cold with any fresh or tinned fruit salad.

SCALLOPED POTATOES IN TOMATO SAUCE CHEAP

Scalloped potatoes in tomato sauce make an inexpensive combination. Ingredients include:—

1 1/2 quarts sliced potatoes
2 to 3 onions sliced
About 2 cups strained tomato
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter or bacon fat
Peel and slice the potatoes. Put a layer of potatoes in a greased baking dish. Add the onion and a sprinkle of salt, pepper, and flour; repeat for each layer. Add the tomatoes until they can be seen through the top layer. Dot with butter or bacon fat, cover the dish, and bake for 1 1/2 hours or until done.

This recipe with whole wheat bread and butter; cabbage salad, brown sugar pudding, and milk for the children is described as a well balanced, adequate meal.

KEEP SINK DRAIN OPEN

Rubber Cap Fastened To Handle.

Every kitchen should contain an aid for keeping the sink from clogging.

A rubber cap, stiff and firm, fastened to a handle, will create the suction necessary to force the passage of the liquids that are impeding the progress of the drain.

Triangular Trays For Bridge

Novel Card Party Idea For Serving Guests.

For serving guests while seated at the card tables, there are triangular trays, four of which fit together to make a square that covers the entire surface of the table.

The trays may be prepared in the kitchen and placed in front of the guests.

APPLE CRISP

6 medium size apples (4 cups)
1/4 cup water
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup pastry flour
4 tablespoons butter.

Pare the apples and slice very thin. Blend the sugar, flour and butter, keeping the ingredients cold so that the resulting mixture will be crumbly. Butter a casserole, or baking dish; lay the apples in it and sprinkle them with the cinnamon. Add the water, and then spread over them the crumbly mixture. Bake uncovered, in a moderately hot oven for about 40 minutes. Serve with or without cream.

LEMON AND TOMATOES

Whole tomatoes filled with lemon gelatine to which has been added a little vinegar, chopped raw carrots, cabbage and onion make an attractive and appetizing salad. Scoop the insides from the tomatoes and fill them with the gelatine mixture just as it is beginning to congeal. Serve on a bed of lettuce—one to a person.

FISH DISH

Very appetizing is fish when served with each individual piece topped with a slice of eggplant and a big grilled mushroom.

Canton Cheeries Are Delicious

Ideal For Bottling And Jams.

Ripe red cherries are surprisingly tasty this season and as a matter of fact far superior to last year's crop in flavour even though they seem small in size. As they will disappear from the market within a few days, do take advantage of their presence now for the making of cobbles, pies and tarts.

It is also an excellent idea to make several pounds of them up into preserves and jam for nothing tastes quite so good for afternoon tea or for breakfast as hot biscuits and cherry preserves. Combined with fresh rhubarb, a delicious conserve can be made.

EGGS A LA TRIPE.

Hard-boil some eggs. Now try in butter, without browning them, some sliced onions, and add enough flour, and then milk, to make a nice thick sauce. Season with salt, plenty of pepper, and a little nutmeg; cut the eggs into slices, halves, or quarters, warm them through in this heavenly sauce, and serve quickly.

SPICY TOUCH.

When serving honeydew melon, put a shaker of ground ginger on the table and little slices of fresh lime. If your guests have never eaten melon with ginger and lime, you can count on their exclamations of surprise and delight.

A WELL BALANCED DIET.

The importance of a well-balanced diet, including all the vitamins, without which good health is impossible, has often been stressed in these notes.

A well-balanced diet is one which contains foodstuffs in the following proportions—two-thirds starch and sugar, one-sixth fats, one-sixth proteins and a portion of mineral salts which are present in some of these foods. In addition, it should be ensured when arranging the daily menu that such articles of diet contains as much vitamin as possible.

Vitamin C is an important vitamin which is not included in sufficient quantity in the average diet hence the blotchy and scurvy, shine from which many people suffer. Its richest sources are oranges, lemons, grape fruit, tomatoes and raw green vegetables.

SARDINE CIGARETTES.

Make some pastry and roll it out very thin. Bone and mash up some sardines and put a little of this paste on the pastry, rolling it so that little "cigarettes" are formed. Cayenne pepper should be added to the sardines. The "cigarettes" are then fried golden, and served as hot as possible.

WHAT JORKENS HAS TO PUT UP WITH

"I began to get malaria, and so river and pushed into the forest, did he. And then one night, as we were both tired of quinine, he told me what it was we were looking for. Yes, simply a unicorn. He had had natives out in the forest searching for it for weeks, and though they had not yet seen it they had at last found the spoor. And then he explained to me about how to get a unicorn. The animal, he explained to me, was always fairly cautious of men, and, on the whole, in spite of exceptions, had tended to avoid them more than do other animals; but that of late centuries, probably since the invention of firearms or since some other change in the ways of men, it had avoided men so assiduously that it had almost dropped out of history.

"Up to the time that a Pope gave the horn of one to King Francois one day in the fifteenth century, and for a while after, references to the unicorn are so frequent that its avoidance of man, however much wished by the unicorn, can only be called unsuccessful; after that time a cunning unknown before seems to have been added to its love of elusiveness, with the result that it is no longer classed among European mammals. And then the hunter explained to me how to get one. There was no way whatever to come at him, he explained, except one, and that was to drive him.

"And then he drew out some paper and a bit of pencil, and showed me how it was done; he made a row of dots in a semi-circle to represent beaters, and put a cross in the middle to mark the unicorn, and showed me how the flanks came gradually in. His hand was rather shaky with malaria, and I couldn't see very well either, but the thing seemed simple enough, a perfectly ordinary beat.

"Yes, I see," I said, "and the gun stands here." And I pointed to a place ahead of the unicorn, to which the semi-circle of beaters was moving.

"No," he said. "That would do for any other animal; but not for the unicorn. It's been tried, and that's why nobody ever gets one. With the unicorn avoidance of man amounts to a passion. Whatever it was in the past, that's what it is now; and not to take account of that is an error as great as supposing a rhino can't smell. The moment the unicorn sees the line of beaters, with the flanks coming quietly in on him, he knows what's up; he knows he's being driven. By a glance at the line (and his sight is very acute) he knows to what direction. He immediately slips through the forest in exactly the opposite; straight through the line of beaters; and in these forests he usually gets through without even being seen by a native. Not that they haven't seen them."

"Then the place for a gun to stand," I said.

"Exactly," he interrupted. "Stand in front of the unicorn, wherever he is, and we'll try to drive him away from you. He's sure to come straight back."

"Now this seemed to me perfectly sound. Unicorns do avoid men; there can be no doubt of that. They must have some method in doing it. Granting a considerable intelligence, without which no method is any good; what better than hiding in a dense forest, and, when driven, always going in the opposite direction to that which is obviously intended? And history is too full of the unicorn for us to suppose that they are merely not there.

"Well," said Rhino, for Rhino Parks was his name whatever it may have been in England once, "those Wakamba trackers have found him. What about trying to-morrow?"

"I'm not sure that I can hold a rifle just yet," I said.

"No use giving in to malaria here," he answered, "or no one would ever do anything."

"Which is true, though the place is a good deal written up as a health resort.

"All right, to-morrow," I said.

"And to-morrow came, which was one thing to the good. You never know what's coming with malaria."

"Well, I was 'up and ready' by five, but Rhino wouldn't start till I'd had a good breakfast. So I down to it. It had to be liquid, because I could have no more eaten. But was made a breakfast of sorts on two bottles of vermouth that we had, and by about seven we started.

"And now comes the incredible part of my story. We crossed the stood there motionless, seeming to have an awe for its own horn, which it now saw turned against it.

"Then I moved the horn into the hand that was holding the rifle, with the intention of seeing if it was possible to get a cartridge into what was left of the breech; and at the movement of the horn in my hand the unicorn shied like a horse, then turned round, and kicked out with his heels and sprang away, and was almost immediately lost to sight in the forest. And that was the last I ever saw of a unicorn."

"But the horn," said the young fellow who had asked at first about unicorns. "Why didn't you keep the horn?"

"Waiter," said Jorkens, without a word to his critic, "bring me that toasting-fork that I gave to the Club."

We most of us present something to the Club, and sure enough Jorkens had once given an ivory-handled toasting-fork that lay in a drawer in the pantry; for whoever wants to use a toasting-fork in a club? And now the waiter brought it, a fork with silver prongs, or electroplate, and a long ivory handle, too narrow for the task of an elephant and too long for a tooth.

"And bring me," he said, "a small whisky and soda."

The whisky was brought, and as he drank it the strange fork was handed round. Not all of us had seen it before; none of us had eyed it attentively.

"Well, what do you make of it?" said Jorkens when he had finished his whisky.

It was then that Terbut leaned over to me and whispered, but only too audibly, the one word

"Bonzo!"

The ungenerous comment cast over the tale something like, well, a miasma. And that's the kind of thing that Jorkens has to put with.

EQUAL TREATMENT IN STRAITS.

Shipping Ordinance Amendment

A Bill is to be introduced into the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements to amend Ordinance No. 125 (Merchant Shipping). The amendment will mean the deletion of the word "Passenger" in the fourth line of Section 14 and in the third line of sub-section one of Section 15.

Sections 14 and 15 of Ordinance No. 125 (Merchant Shipping) deal with the manning of the various classes of ships engaged in home and local trades, and prescribe the officers which such ships are required to carry according to their tonnage.

The law at present discriminates between British and foreign vessels (in favour of the latter) to this extent, that whereas the requirements of the sections apply to all British ships, in the case of foreign ships they apply only to passenger vessels.

This discrimination obviously places British non-passenger or cargo vessels at a disadvantage in competing with their foreign rivals.

It is proposed by this Bill to delete the word "passenger" from both sections and so to place British and foreign ships in equal terms.

COLONY'S WATER SUPPLY

No Need For Further Restrictions.

BENEFITS OF YESTERDAY'S RAINS

About two weeks water supply for the Island and the mainland has been added to the Colony's reservoirs by yesterday's rain storm. Water is still pouring in and a further appreciable increase is expected during the next few days, as the water is still coming in from the hillsides.

Mr. A. B. Purves, M.Inst.C.E., Maintenance Engineer of the Waterworks, this morning informed the China Mail that the increase would not result in increased hours of supply, but it has relieved the necessity of enforcing further restrictions.

Storage figures are as follows:—
Kowloon, yesterday morning, 217,000,000 gallons.
Kowloon, this morning, 235,000,000 gallons.
Hong Kong, yesterday morning, 467,000,000 gallons.
Hong Kong, this morning, 532,000,000 gallons.

According to the Waterworks rain gauges, the rainfall on the Island, yesterday, varied between 3.38 inches and 2.66, the maximum figure being recorded at Aberdeen and the minimum figure at Tytam.
